

Zanesville, OH

VI

Feb. 7, 1812

The Messenger
February 12, 1812

On Friday morning last, at about 45 minutes past three o'clock A.M. we experienced a more violent shock of an earthquake than heretofore felt. A number of slight shocks have been felt since, sometimes two or three in a day. We anticipate direful accounts from the south-west, in consequence of the late main shock.

The Palladium
Feb. 26, 1812

At Zanesville, Ohio, it was alarming